

Welcome return of Edge Recruitment's Jane Carey

The team at Edge Recruitment excitedly welcome back on board Jane Carey following 12 months maternity leave.

Focusing on the development of new business in contracting, Jane's extensive knowledge of the property industry will further strengthen Edge Recruitment's presence in the placement of high level property professionals for short to medium term temporary/contract positions.

Jane will oversee the roll out of an ambitious strategy focusing specifically on placing specialist property experienced contract professionals across the property industry that will:-

- offer clients a flexible approach to recruiting high level property professionals
- forge a more connected, informed and professional service
- meet the state's growing need for property experienced staff particularly with the emergence of new developments including the New RAH, Adelaide Oval, Tonsley Park & other infrastructure projects.

Edge Recruitment is actively moving forward in the placement of professionals in property related roles across sectors including government, defence, education and the corporate sector.

With an enviable knowledge of the property industry and an extensive database of property experienced candidates, Jane is looking forward to working with clients in bridging the gap of experienced, industry qualified upper management who have the know-how to get down to work immediately.

Ms Carey said Edge Recruitment has enjoyed significant growth in recent years and has established strong relationships as the leading supplier of recruitment services to the property and real estate industries.

Jane's return to Edge coincided with the hugely successful sixth annual Fabulous Women in Property event, hosted by Rosanna Mangiarelli, featuring guest speaker and Logie nominated actor Erik Thomson and attended by over 300 women from across all areas of property and real estate.
